

SIENA FOODIE TOUR

Siena isn't just the city with red brick walls and the famous Palio horse race, nor just an open-air art museum full of history. Siena is also a gastronomic destination par excellence, where culinary tradition blends with culture and heritage. Here, you can taste dishes that tell stories, passed down through generations, and that are almost impossible to find elsewhere in Italy. Imagine strolling through the most charming streets of the city, off the beaten tourist path, discovering hidden spots where locals go to indulge in true delicacies. We're talking about dishes like pici pasta, crostini with chicken liver or black cabbage, wild boar sauce, the finest cold cuts, panforte, and ricciarelli, typical sweets that will surely delight your palate. Whether you're already familiar with these dishes or not, tasting them prepared the authentic way by Siena's best food artisans will be an unforgettable experience. This tour not only lets you savor the food, but also immerse yourself in the fascinating history behind each dish and the people who keep these culinary traditions alive. Walking in Siena is always a captivating experience, but with its local cuisine, your day will become even more special, leaving you with memories that will be among the best of your travels. Experience Siena through its flavors, combining history, tradition, and authentic tastes.
